Dear Alumni and Friends:

We’ve successfully wrapped up our first 100 years of excellence in legal education. Now it’s on to the next century of achievement, building on the foundations of the first.

Chief among Loyola University Chicago School of Law’s many successes and milestones this past year was our centennial celebration.

To mark our 100th anniversary, the School of Law sponsored a variety of academic and networking events and published a unique history of the school.

Our Centers of Excellence, which lead the way in significant and emerging areas of the law, continue to flourish. Last year, we celebrated the 15th anniversary of the Civitas ChildLaw Center, and this year, we mark the 25th year of the nationally recognized Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy.

The law school continues its emphasis on faculty distinction, with the installation of Diane Geraghty as the A. Kathleen Beazley Chair in ChildLaw and the arrivals of renowned litigator Barry Sullivan as the first Cooney and Conway Chair in Advocacy and John Nowak as the first Raymond and Mary Simon Chair in Constitutional Law. With the addition of several talented new and visiting faculty members, the range and depth of our faculty expertise is greater than ever.

We also continue to develop and expand our popular international law programs—welcoming United States Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg to our Rome campus this summer—and maintain our focus on serving others, with an ever-growing list of public service and public interest activities.

I hope you’ll enjoy reading about these and other accomplishments in this report. Without the generous support of our graduates and friends, the school’s current momentum and progress would not be possible. Our Honor Roll of Donors on page 24 recognizes this key support and provides updates on several recent gifts.

We welcome your ongoing interest and participation in the life of our law school. Visit LUC.edu/law to learn more.

Upgrading Our Facilities

Phase one of the renovation and expansion of the Loyola Law Center at 25 E. Pearson St. has been completed. Floors 10 and 11 are now home to Loyola’s law clinics, the Center for Advocacy, the Writing Center, the Civitas ChildLaw Center, a beautiful new two-story Ceremonial Courtroom, and six new classrooms.

The state-of-the-art courtroom is trimmed in cherrywood and contains seating for 168, with fixed desks equipped with electronic outlets to power laptop computers. In addition, 70 microphones inlaid in the desks ensure proper sound amplification throughout the room. The courtroom is designed to be the center of law school activities, not only for the training of advocates, but also to host many of the law programs, conferences, and events that occur at the School of Law each year.

Phase two of the renovation will begin in December. By next summer, the 12th floor of 25 E. Pearson will be the new home for the law school’s administrative offices, including the dean’s office, admissions and financial aid, the registrar, and the advancement office. Two new classrooms are also included in the 12th-floor renovation.

Marking 100 Years of Excellence in Legal Education

The School of Law celebrated its 100th anniversary with an exciting year of special events. Highlights included academic programs, conferences, two faculty investitures, a group admission to the bar of the U.S. Supreme Court, regional events in 11 cities, a special anniversary law video, and a Centennial Gala held at Chicago’s Field Museum with more than 600 alumni and friends in attendance.

In addition, a book on the history of Loyola University Chicago School of Law has been published. The First 100 Years, written by Professor Thomas Haney, is an engaging and colorful publication that tells the special story of Loyola’s School of Law over the last century. Copies are available in the Law Library, or visit LUC.edu/lawhistorybook.

Loyola University Chicago President Michael J. Garanzini, S.J., reviewed highlights of the law school’s history at the 100th anniversary gala in February.
CIVITAS CHILDLAW CENTER
Professor Diane Geraghty assumes chair in childlaw

The Civitas Childlaw Center kicked off its 15th anniversary year last September with a lecture and celebration featuring guest speaker Michael S. Wald, one of the nation’s leading authorities on child-welfare law and policy. The celebration continued in October with the special induction ceremony of Professor Diane C. Geraghty as Loyola’s first A. Kathleen Beazley Chair in Childlaw.

Geraghty, a member of the Loyola law faculty since 1997 and co-founder and director of the Civitas Childlaw Center, is a national leader in child law teaching, research, service, and policy. The A. Kathleen Beazley chair was established by Loyola law alumnus Bernard Beazley (JD ’50) to honor his wife, Kathleen.

INNOVATIVE ONLINE MJ PROGRAM GROWS
Loyola’s recent partnership with Concord Law School on an innovative online Master of Jurisprudence in health law degree continues to thrive. The 24-credit program is delivered exclusively online and is open to individuals working in the healthcare field who are interested in studying laws that govern the healthcare industry. More than 100 students have enrolled in the online MJ program since it was first launched in 2007.

INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL AND COMPARATIVE LAW

In addition, Loyola’s Federal Tax Clinic allows students to provide legal services in the areas of tax law and practice, estate and gift tax, and international tax law. The clinic has provided pro bono services to individuals and non-profit organizations, as well as conducting outreach events and workshops for the local community.

TAX LAW CERTIFICATE PROGRAM AND FEDERAL TAX CLINIC

Tax law certificate program celebrates milestone

Loyola’s Tax Certificate Program recently celebrated its 30th anniversary. More than 175 Loyola law students have earned a certificate in tax law. Loyola’s structured tax curriculum and dedicated full-time and adjunct faculty provide valuable training for students who ultimately enter a tax law, corporate law, or general business practice.

In addition, Loyola’s Federal Tax Clinic allows students to provide assistance, under close faculty supervision, to taxpayer clients who might otherwise go without representation in dealing with matters concerning the Internal Revenue Service. The clinic, established in 1988, was the first of its kind in the Chicago area and remains one of a limited number in the nation.

INTELLIGENT PROPERTY PROGRAM

Loyola’s Intellectual Property (IP) program offers students a wide range of classes, including research, theory, and practice. The program is designed to prepare students for careers in IP law and to provide a rich learning experience. The program also offers a variety of extracurricular activities to balance a strong academic curriculum.

RISING STUDENT INTEREST PROPELS IP PROGRAM GROWTH

With growing student interest and an expanded offering of extracurricular IP activities to balance a strong academic program, the School of Law has become a rising star in the Chicago IP community and is gaining a national presence in the field. Under the leadership of IP faculty who are among the nation’s foremost scholars in this area, Loyola’s intellectual property program offers students a wide range of classes, fellowships, externships, conferences, workshops, career counseling, and advanced research under faculty supervision.

INTERNATIONAL LAW PROGRAMS

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Ginsburg visits Loyola

Since 1983, the School of Law has offered a four-week summer program of international and comparative law courses to students at Loyola’s John Felice Rome Center in Italy. Students trained in the common law tradition have the opportunity to study and observe Italian civil law practice. U.S. Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg joined Dean David Yellen, students, and faculty on this year’s Study Law Abroad program in Rome as a special guest lecturer for a week in July. Justice Ginsburg spoke on the work of the Supreme Court and gender and the law, and provided an overview of the recent Supreme Court term.

The School of Law also offers a summer China program based at Loyola’s Beijing Center. The center has been home to Loyola’s undergraduate China program since 1998.

INSTITUTE FOR CONSUMER ANTI-TRUST STUDIES

Celebrating 15 years of consumer protection

Loyola’s Institute for Consumer Antitrust Studies continues to serve as one of the nation’s leading voices for a more competitive and consumer-friendly economy by sponsoring symposia, academic colloquia, and a unique student fellowship. Earlier this year, the institute kicked off its 15th anniversary celebration with a roundtable discussion on “Antitrust and the Rule of Law” with the British Institute of International and Comparative Law at the British Consulate in Cambridge, followed by the Ninth Annual Loyola Antitrust Colloquium at the Loyola Law Center in May.

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

John E. Nowak is first chair of constitutional law

A renowned scholar in constitutional law, John E. Nowak was inducted as Loyola’s Raymond and Mary Simon Chair in Constitutional Law at a special ceremony in May. Nowak joined Loyola’s full-time law faculty in July 2008. He was most recently the David C. Baum Professor Emeritus at the University of Illinois College of Law. Nowak is the coauthor of leading single and multivolume reference books on constitutional law, and has also written numerous articles on a variety of constitutional law topics.

In addition to researching, teaching, and publishing in the area of constitutional law, he will develop and plan conferences, speaker series, and other programs in the field. The Helen V. Brach Foundation established the Raymond and Mary Simon Chair in Constitutional Law at Loyola in 2007 to honor its former president, Raymond F. Simon (BA ’52, JD ’56).

PATENT LAW PROGRAM

Loyola hosts nation’s largest single-practice job fair

This summer, the School of Law welcomed more than 750 law students from more than 100 law schools and 100 legal employers from across the country to its annual Patent Law Interview Program. For the past 23 years, this program has brought together students with technical backgrounds and legal employers interested in hiring law clerks and entry-level attorneys for their patent or intellectual property law practices. It is the largest single-practice job fair in the country.

TAX LAW CERTIFICATE PROGRAM AND FEDERAL TAX CLINIC

Tax law program celebrates milestone

Loyola’s Tax Certificate Program recently celebrated its 10th anniversary. More than 175 Loyola law students have earned a certificate in tax law. Loyola’s structured tax curriculum and dedicated full-time and adjunct faculty provide valuable training for students who ultimately enter a tax law, corporate law, or general business practice.

In addition, Loyola’s Federal Tax Clinic allows students to provide assistance, under close faculty supervision, to taxpayer clients who might otherwise go without representation in dealing with matters concerning the Internal Revenue Service. The clinic, established in 1988, was the first of its kind in the Chicago area and remains one of a limited number in the nation.

Loyola firmly believes that engaging in community service during law school can instill a lifelong commitment to helping others. In addition to law-related service activities, Loyola law students participate in a host of other efforts to give back to our community.

During Hunger Week at Loyola, law students joined alumni, faculty, and staff in preparing boxes of food at the Greater Chicago Food Depository and Catholic Charities for distribution to those in need. Some law students also assisted Catholic Charities in meal services.

Law-Related Education provides law student volunteers with the opportunity to visit a local detention center once a week for six weeks to educate residents about the legal process.

The Public Service Convocation recognizes outstanding achievements in public service and pro bono service by members of the bar.

The Public Interest Law Society Auction raises money to support Loyola law students working in unpaid public interest summer internships.

The Meet the Public Service Employers Reception provides Loyola law students with an opportunity to meet and network with attorneys from nonprofit and government sectors.

The Loan Repayment Assistance Program is a Loyola program designed to ease the educational debt burden for recent law graduates who are engaged in full-time public service employment.

Public Interest Law Reporter (PILR) is an innovative legal publication, edited and produced by Loyola law students, that focuses on reporting the most current legal topics in a news format directed to students, educators, and practitioners. Each year, PILR organizes a Public Interest Law Symposium. This year’s symposium dealt with inequities in public education.

The Chicago Training Center provides after-school tutoring assistance to Chicago-area students who participate in an urban rowing program, and Harlan Mentoring provides mentoring and tutoring assistance to Chicago-area high school students. Loyola law students participate in both programs.

Loyola’s Street Law and Pipeline Programs give Loyola law students a unique opportunity to enrich their own legal education while contributing to the education of elementary- and high-school students in the Chicago area. Pipeline programs provide activities to encourage Chicago’s students, particularly low-income and minority youth, to consider law as a career. The School of Law hosted seven groups of students during the course of this school year.

The Race and the Law Symposium is an annual program organized by Loyola’s minority law student organizations. This year’s topic was the impact of race on local and national elections.

Loyola law students also participated in the following off-campus programs:

Chicago Legal Aid to Incarcerated Mothers provides assistance to incarcerated women who need help with custody or child visitation arrangements for their children.

Election Protection is a nonpartisan organization that ensures that voters’ rights are protected, by providing education prior to elections and operating a hotline on election days.

Martin Luther King Jr. Day of Service offers Loyola law students the opportunity to join youth groups to prepare murals containing messages of peace and nonviolence for display throughout Chicago.

Ladder Up provides tax assistance to low-income families.

TURNING KNOWLEDGE TO THE SERVICE OF OTHERS

Committed to the Jesuit tradition of community service, the School of Law provides many opportunities for students to use their legal skills and understanding of social justice to help those in need. From Loyola’s multiple clinical programs to many student organizations, there are numerous ways for students to engage in public interest work and volunteer opportunities during law school. Here are just a few of Loyola’s many public service activities during the 2008–09 year:
STANDING OUT IN STUDENT COMPETITIONS

New Faculty

Robert John Araujo, S.J., joined Loyola’s law faculty in July as the inaugural holder of the John Courtney Murray, S.J., University Professorship. Father Araujo served as a trial attorney and advisor in the solicitor’s office of the U.S. Department of the Interior and as a lawyer for the Standard Oil Company. He has served on the law faculty at Gonzaga University and Pontifical Gregorian University, and as a visiting professor at Georgetown University Law Center, St. Louis University School of Law, and Boston College School of Law. Father Araujo has authored numerous law review articles on topics that include jurisprudence, public international law, constitutional law, and Catholic legal theory. He has coauthored a series of books on papal diplomacy and international organizations with the late John A. Lucal, S.J. In addition, Father Araujo has contributed chapters to a number of volumes addressing topics in jurisprudence and public international law.

Samuel Brunson joined Loyola’s full-time law faculty in July. He most recently worked in the tax department of Willkie Farr & Gallagher LLP in New York. He also clerked for the Honorable George W. Miller on the U.S. Court of Federal Claims in Washington, D.C. He received a BA from Brigham Young University and a JD from Columbia Law School. Brunson will teach Federal Income Tax and International Tax.

Lea Krivinskas Shepard joined Loyola’s full-time law faculty in July 2008. Shepard earned her JD degree from Harvard Law School, where she served as executive editor of the Harvard International Law Journal. After graduation, she worked as an associate at Jones Day in Cleveland and later clerked for the Honorable James G. Carr, chief judge of the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, and the Honorable Terence T. Evans of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. Shepard's research interests include bankruptcy, consumer law and credit, and financial institutions.

Barry Sullivan joined Loyola's full-time law faculty this summer as the law school's first Cooney and Conway Chair in Advocacy. Sullivan was a partner in the Chicago office of Jenner & Block and a longtime leader of its appellate and Supreme Court practice. He began his career as a law clerk to the legendary Judge John Minor Wisdom of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, and he later served as an assistant to the U.S. solicitor general. As the Cooney and Conway chair, Sullivan will work to strengthen and expand Loyola's Center for Advocacy, already one of the best in the country. (Also see page 6.)

Michael J. Zimmer joined Loyola's full-time law faculty in July 2008 from Seton Hall University Law School, where he had been a member of the law faculty since 1978. Zimmer was a visiting professor of law at Loyola in 2006; he was most recently a visiting professor at Northwestern Law School. Zimmer received his AB and JD degrees from Marquette University, where he was editor-in-chief of the Marquette Law Review. He also holds an LLM degree from Columbia University, where he was named a James Kent Fellow. Following law school, he clerked for the Honorable Thomas E. Fairchild of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit and then served as an associate at Foley and Lardner in Milwaukee. This past year, he taught a Constitutional Law course to first-year students and a course in international and comparative employment law called The Global Workplace.

Catherine T. Dwyer joined Loyola last year as a visiting professor of law from Michigan State University Law School. She taught European Union Law and Issues in the Law of Developing Countries last fall, and Comparative Company Law and Securities Regulations in the spring semester.

Elizabeth M. Glazer joins Loyola as a visiting professor this year from Hofstra University Law School, where she is an associate professor of law and codirector of the Hofstra LGBT Rights Fellowship. Glazer's research examines the topic of exclusion in the First Amendment, anti-discrimination law, and property law. She is currently working to determine whether the rights to exclude in the First Amendment context and the property law context are grounded in the same, or different, theoretical bases. She teaches courses in First Amendment, Jurisprudence, Property, Law and Sexuality, and Transactional Lawyering. While at Loyola this fall, she is teaching courses in Property and Law and Sexuality.

Matthew Herder was a visiting professor at Loyola last year. He completed the Stanford Program in International Legal Studies, where he earned a Master of the Science of the Law degree (ISM) after receiving LL.M and LLB degrees from Dalhousie University. He has worked as an attorney in the intellectual property litigation group at McCarthy Tétrault LLP in Toronto, Ontario, and served as a law clerk for the Federal Court of Canada. While at Loyola, he taught courses on Bioethics and Intellectual Property.

Cynthia Lepow joined Loyola last year as a visiting professor of law from Loyola New Orleans College of Law. Prior to joining Loyola New Orleans, she practiced commercial and corporate law in New York for multinational clients in the energy and chemical industries. At Loyola University Chicago, she taught courses on Federal Income Tax and Virtual Justice.

Sarah N. Welling joined Loyola last year from the University of Kentucky College of Law, where she has taught since 1981. She specializes in federal criminal law, particularly money laundering laws. Welling taught Criminal Law at Loyola.

Laura A. Caldwell (JD ’92) joined the School of Law in January. She has litigation experience in the areas of medical malpractice, insurance defense, and entertainment law. Caldwell has been published in a variety of legal publications, and is also a freelance magazine writer and a novelist. She began publishing thrillers and suspense novels in 2005. Her work has been translated into 10 languages and published in more than 20 countries. Caldwell’s first Hot mystery trilogy was published this summer. At Loyola, she teaches Advanced Writing for Litigation and the International Criminal Court seminar, and she will spearhead Loyola’s Life After Innocence Project, which aids former prisoners following exoneration.

Richard A. Devine joined Loyola in January as a distinguished adjunct professor of law. He is a partner at Meckler Bulger Tilson Marick & Pearson LLP and recently joined the Chicago office of Resolute Systems to provide mediation, arbitration, and alternative dispute resolution services. Devine is a former state’s attorney for Cook County, Illinois. He taught a course in Criminal Law last spring and will teach The Death Penalty in Illinois this fall.

William C. Herbert came to Loyola with more than 15 years of experience as a litigation training partner with the Chicago law firms Hopkins and Sutter and Foley and Lardner LLP. He taught Law of Risk Management and Advanced Litigation Skills last fall, and Advanced Litigation Skills in the spring semester.

Chunlin Leonard will be returning to Loyola as a visiting professor of law this fall. She is a partner in the litigation and business regulations and the Asia Pacific practice groups at Sonnenschein, Nath & Rosenthal. She will teach courses in Commercial Law and Civil Practice.

Robert Z. Slaughter most recently served as executive vice president, general counsel, and corporate secretary of Grubb & Ellis Company, a real estate services firm. While at Loyola this year, he will teach courses in Negotiation and Documentation of Merger and Acquisition Transaction and the Art of In-House Legal Counseling.

Douglas G. Smith is a partner at Kirkland & Ellis LLP. His research interests include constitutional law and constitutional history, civil procedure, mass torts, and corporate and securities law. While at Loyola this year, he will teach a course in Mass Torts.

Barbara J. Youngberg joined Loyola from University HealthSystem Consortium Inc., where she served as vice president of insurance, risk, quality management, and legal services. She is teaching a Risk Management course with Loyola’s Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy.

Dean Emerita Nina S. Appel recently was honored by the Chicago Women’s Bar Association with the Esther Rothstein Award.

John Blum, John J. Waldron Research Professor, was elected to the Fellows of the American Bar Foundation. He served as guest editor of a volume on comparative health systems for Medicine and Law, vol. 28, No. 1, March 2009. Blum was a plenary session speaker at the ABA Health Law Section’s “Emerging Issues: Conference Telemedicine Licensing and Credentialing Challenges for Providers” in Orlando.

Bruce Boyer was a guest speaker for a program on children and immigration law at Loyola titled “Suffer the Children—Celebration of the 60th Anniversary of the UN Declaration of Universal Human Rights.” He was also a featured speaker at the production of Blackbird at the Victory Gardens Biograph Theater in Chicago on the topic of child sex abuse.

John Breen wrote “Neutrality in Liberal Legal Theory and Catholic Social Thought,” published in Harvard Journal of Law & Public Policy (Spring 2009), and “Priest, Prophet and King: Abortion, the Vocation of Catholic Politicians, and the Culture of Life” published in Journal of Catholic Social Thought (Spring 2009).

Jennifer Brondel and Alice Perlin gave a presentation titled “Selecting, Training, and Supervising Student Tutors” at the Legal Writing Institute conference, sponsored by Indiana University School of Law.

Diane Geraghty was inducted as the A. Kathleen Beazley Chair in Child Law at Loyola University Chicago School of Law. She coteach a Gender and Human Rights course to graduate students at Addis Ababa Law School in Ethiopia in December. She also spoke on Illinois juvenile justice reform at the MacArthur Foundation’s Model for Change Working Conference in Washington, D.C., in December, and on the topic of juvenile justice reform at Northwestern Law School, Chicago, in January.

Jamie Carey participated as faculty in a National Institute for Trial Advocacy in-house program for Baker Botts in Louisville, Colorado, in February, and lectured on direct and cross examination for the Labor Arbitration, Inc. Conference held in Chicago in May.

INTERNATIONAL FELLOWSHIP HONORS FATHER’S MEMORY

Loyola is very pleased to receive support for one of its international programs with the establishment of the Dr. Aminta Rota Vis Moot Fellowship. This endowed gift of $42,000 will support the participation of one law student each year in the International Vis Moot Arbitration Competition, which takes place each spring in two different venues, Hong Kong and Vienna.

The fellowship is established in honor of the late Dr. Rota, a successful and widely respected Italian lawyer, by his children Silvia Rota (LLM ’06) and Attilio Rota. “Loyola is very fortunate that Dr. Rota’s children chose to honor him in this way,” said Professor Margaret Moses, who directs the Vis Moot Program. “His fund will provide an outstanding educational opportunity for Loyola students for years to come.”

ROOM IN RENOVATED LOYOLA LAW CENTER NAMED IN RECOGNITION OF GIFT

Marking the school’s 100th anniversary year, Cezar “Cid” Shefsky (BS ’65, JD ’70) and his wife, Mary, a Mundelein ’67 alumna, and children Jennifer (BA ‘94), Christian (BMA ’00), and Michael (JD ’06) —Cid has supported many areas of the University, but says the timing was right to make a major gift to the law school. “I am grateful for the role that Loyola has played in the education of my family,” says Cid. “The law school taught me on a career path that has been very rewarding. I am delighted to give back and support the next generation of young lawyers.”

In recognition of his gift, a seminar room in the newly renovated building will be named in honor of Cid’s firm, Shefsky & Freivelich, one of the top mid-sized firms in the Chicago area.

As the School of Law moves into its second century, support from alumni and friends is an increasingly critical part of its success. The alumni and friends who supported the law school in fiscal year 2009 have laid the groundwork for our ambitious future. Please be assured that the law school worked very hard to ensure the accuracy of this report; however, we sincerely apologize in advance for any errors or omissions. If you find a mistake in our listing, please contact Sean Martin, associate director of annual giving, at smart4@luc.edu or 312.915.7365. Thank you for your understanding and support.
