Our Mission

Loyola University Chicago School of Law is a student-focused law center inspired by the Jesuit tradition of academic excellence, intellectual openness, and service to others. Our mission is to educate diverse, talented students to be responsible leaders in a rapidly changing, interdependent world; to prepare graduates who will be ethical advocates for justice and the rule of law; and to contribute to a deeper understanding of law and legal institutions through a commitment to research, scholarship, and public service.
LOYOLA UNIVERSITY CHICAGO SCHOOL OF LAW IS PROUD TO BE A LEADER IN CURRICULAR DEVELOPMENT. THE LEGAL MARKETPLACE IS ALWAYS CHANGING, AND WE WORK HARD TO ENSURE OUR STUDENTS ARE PREPARED FOR EMERGING TRENDS AND ISSUES IN THE LAW. WITH THE ONLINE DEBUT OF OUR MASTER OF JURISPRUDENCE (MJ) IN BUSINESS AND CORPORATE GOVERNANCE LAW THIS FALL, AND THE CONTINUING SUCCESS OF OUR OTHER ONLINE DEGREE PROGRAMS—THE MJ IN CHILDREN’S LAW AND POLICY, MJ IN HEALTH LAW, AND LLM IN HEALTH LAW—LOYOLA IS TRULY A PIONEER IN MAKING QUALITY LEGAL EDUCATION ACCESSIBLE TO STUDENTS ACROSS THE COUNTRY AND WORLD.

CONTINUING OUR EMPHASIS ON EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING THAT COMPLEMENTS THE SUBSTANTIVE STUDY OF LAW, OUR NEWLY RETOOLING EXTERNSHIP PROGRAM AND FIVE CLINICS OFFER STUDENTS HANDS-ON PRACTICAL EXPERIENCES: THE TOOLS AND SKILLS THEY NEED TO MAKE A SEAMLESS TRANSITION INTO PRACTICE.

WE WELCOME INTERNATIONAL SCHOLAR JAMES GATHII AND NEW DAN K. WEBB CENTER FOR ADVOCACY DIRECTOR ZELDA HARRIS, BOTH OF WHOM BRING NEW EXPERTISE TO OUR STABLE FACULTY AND ADMINISTRATION. LOYOLA CONTINUES TO ATTRACT THE BEST AND BRIGHTEST STUDENTS AS WE ENHANCE THE DIVERSITY OF OUR STUDENT BODY. WE'RE PLEASED THAT MINORITY ENROLLMENT FOR THIS YEAR’S ENTERING CLASS IS AT 28 PERCENT.

ALL OF THESE ACHIEVEMENTS—AND THE OTHER TEACHING, RESEARCH, SERVICE, AND POLICY SUCCESSES YOU’LL READ ABOUT IN THESE PAGES—ARE MADE POSSIBLE BY THE GENEROUS AND LOYAL SUPPORT OF OUR ALUMNI AND FRIENDS. WE RECOGNIZE THIS ESSENTIAL SUPPORT IN OUR HONOR ROLL OF DONORS, BEGINNING ON PAGE 56, IN WHICH WE ALSO ANNOUNCE ACCESS TO EXCELLENCE: THE CAMPAIGN FOR SCHOLARSHIPS. UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT AND CEO MICHAEL J. GARANZINI, S.J., HAS PLEDGED $22 MILLION TO MATCH CONTRIBUTIONS OF $500 OR MORE MADE TO AN ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIP IN A FISCAL YEAR, SO THIS IS AN EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY TO SUPPORT A TALENTED AND HARD-WORKING STUDENT ON HIS OR HER LOYOLA LAW JOURNEY.

WE DEEPLY VALUE YOUR CONTINUED PARTNERSHIP WITH THE SCHOOL OF LAW COMMUNITY, AND YOUR COMMITMENT TO ENSURING THE NEW GENERATION OF ENGAGED AND ETHICAL LOYOLA LAWYERS.

MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

LOYOLA UNIVERSITY CHICAGO SCHOOL OF LAW IS PROUD TO BE A LEADER IN CURRICULAR DEVELOPMENT. THE LEGAL MARKETPLACE IS ALWAYS CHANGING, AND WE WORK HARD TO ENSURE OUR STUDENTS ARE PREPARED FOR EMERGING TRENDS AND ISSUES IN THE LAW. WITH THE ONLINE DEBUT OF OUR MASTER OF JURISPRUDENCE (MJ) IN BUSINESS AND CORPORATE GOVERNANCE LAW THIS FALL, AND THE CONTINUING SUCCESS OF OUR OTHER ONLINE DEGREE PROGRAMS—THE MJ IN CHILDREN’S LAW AND POLICY, MJ IN HEALTH LAW, AND LLM IN HEALTH LAW—LOYOLA IS TRULY A PIONEER IN MAKING QUALITY LEGAL EDUCATION ACCESSIBLE TO STUDENTS ACROSS THE COUNTRY AND WORLD.

WE WELCOME INTERNATIONAL SCHOLAR JAMES GATHII AND NEW DAN K. WEBB CENTER FOR ADVOCACY DIRECTOR ZELDA HARRIS, BOTH OF WHOM BRING NEW EXPERTISE TO OUR STABLE FACULTY AND ADMINISTRATION. LOYOLA CONTINUES TO ATTRACT THE BEST AND BRIGHTEST STUDENTS AS WE ENHANCE THE DIVERSITY OF OUR STUDENT BODY. WE’RE PLEASED THAT MINORITY ENROLLMENT FOR THIS YEAR’S ENTERING CLASS IS AT 28 PERCENT.

All of these achievements—and the other teaching, research, service, and policy successes you’ll read about in these pages—are made possible by the generous and loyal support of our alumni and friends. We recognize this essential support in our Honor Roll of Donors, beginning on page 56, in which we also announce Access to Excellence: The Campaign for Scholarships. University President and CEO Michael J. Garanzini, S.J., has pledged $22 million to match contributions of $500 or more made to an endowed scholarship in a fiscal year, so this is an excellent opportunity to support a talented and hard-working student on his or her Loyola law journey.

We deeply value your continued partnership with the School of Law community, and your commitment to ensuring the new generation of engaged and ethical Loyola lawyers.

Centers of Excellence

The School of Law’s several Centers of Excellence are dedicated to the highest standards of teaching, research, service, and policy development, taking an integrated and interdisciplinary approach to significant issues and events affecting the law today. Here are the centers’ highlights from the past year.

Dan K. Webb Center for Advocacy

Center welcomes new leader, continues competition success

As one of the most respected programs of its kind in the nation, Loyola’s Dan K. Webb Center for Advocacy continues to set a standard for excellence. Students in Loyola’s advocacy program are given the opportunity to learn from distinguished academics as well as experienced attorneys as they prepare for careers as litigators. Highlights from this past year include the arrival of Zelda Harris as the new center director (also see page 30), succeeding Jamie Carey, who retired in May after 34 years of extraordinary dedication and service to the School of Law and the center. In this very important role, Harris will oversee all aspects of the Center for Advocacy program, including developing curriculum, running the National Institute for Trial Advocacy (NITA) Regional Trial Advocacy Program, and assisting with the acclaimed Philip H. Corboy Fellowship Program in Trial Advocacy.

Loyola served as host of five advocacy competitions this past year, including the ABA Client Counseling Midwest Regional Competition, which simulates a law office consultation with a new client; the Willem C. Vis Mini-Moot, which serves as a practice moot for student teams participating in the Vis International Moot Arbitration Competition in Vienna and Hong Kong; an Intra-school Moot Court Competition, in which second-year students compete against each other in written and oral advocacy; and the Midwest Regional Rounds of the National Trial Competition, which is sponsored by the Texas Young Lawyers Association. More than 140 law schools and 1,000 law students compete each year in the National Trial Competition. In March, Teresa Frisbie, director of Loyola’s Dispute Resolution Program, hosted the International Academy of Dispute Resolution (INADR) International Mediation Competition, where Loyola won second place for mediation skills out of 46 international teams.

Loyola’s Dispute Resolution Program expanded its negotiation and mediation advocacy course offerings last year and provided education opportunities for attorneys, judges, arbitrators, and mediators to use mediation and arbitration in e-discovery. The program also initiated a pilot program with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, where Loyola students represent pro se parties in mediations at the EEOC. The pilot was a great success, and plans are under way to offer a second program again this year. In April, Loyola’s negotiation team was selected as one of two U.S. teams (out of 37) to participate in the Warsaw Negotiation Round 2012.

Other highlights include another year of remarkable success for Loyola’s student teams in regional, national, and international advocacy competitions. Loyola won the National Health Law Moot Court Championship, the Giles Sutherland Rich Moot Court National Championship, and the Best Brief Award at the National Tax Law Moot Court Competition.

Civitas ChildLaw Center

Center has new faces, new programs, new supporters

The Civitas ChildLaw Center provides quality representation to child clients and exercises leadership around efforts to improve the child welfare, juvenile justice, and other child-serving systems. This year, the center welcomed two new postgraduate fellows, each with a two-year appointment. Alexandra Fung has joined the center as its new Linda Salisbury Clinical Teaching Fellow. An NYU law school graduate, Fung comes to Loyola from the Immigrant Children’s Protection Project at the National Immigrant Justice Center, where she served as supervising attorney. Amy Meek, the center’s new ChildLaw Policy and Legislation Teaching Fellow, is a graduate of Yale Law School and most recently served as deputy chief of staff to the Mayor’s Re-entry Coordinator for the City of New Haven, Connecticut. In addition, Miranda Johnson, a former Salisbury Fellow, has been named associate director of the ChildLaw and Policy Education Institute, headed by Dean Michael Kaufman. Kathleen Hirsman has joined the Education Institute as a senior lecturer in residence.

The law school launched its new online master of jurisprudence in children’s law and policy in the fall. The program’s curriculum, which covers a wide range of children’s law issues, is built around a theme of leadership development. The third cohort of students begins the program in September.

The ChildLaw Center continues to build its presence in the international children’s rights community. In March, students in a comparative law seminar traveled to Turkey, where they researched topics such as the Turkish juvenile justice system and the issue of child brides. In April, alumna Brigette DeLay (JD ’07), child specialist for UNICEF’s regional office in West and Central Africa, lectured and met with students and faculty in a visit cosponsored by the Civitas Center and Loyola’s Center on the Human Rights of Children. This past summer, three ChildLaw Fellows completed international internships in Africa (Cape Verde, Ethiopia, and Kenya).

The ChildLaw Center was recently awarded a $1 million grant from the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation to continue its work overseeing juvenile justice reform efforts in Illinois. Other grants have been received to support Loyola’s effort to eliminate childhood lead poisoning.

The upcoming academic year promises to be a busy one. On October 12, 2012, the Children’s Legal Rights Journal will host a day-long symposium on Children and Immigration. Loyola will host a statewide school administrators’ conference in October, and a national education conference in the spring.

Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy

Loyola continues to lead in health law

Now in its 28th year, the Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy offers one of the most comprehensive and well-respected health law programs in the country. This year, the institute hosted its second annual National Health Law Transactional Competition, the only competition of its kind in the country. The competition was recently endowed and named the L. Edward Bryant Jr. National Health Law Transactional Competition in honor of L. Edward Bryant Jr., a former chair of the health care group at the Chicago law firm Drinker Biddle & Reath, and a longtime supporter of Loyola’s health law program. The second annual competition, including 13 teams representing...
10 law schools, was held in March. Students prepared legal memoranda and gave oral presentations advising a hypothetical health care client on the business and legal ramifications of a potential business opportunity.

The Fifth Annual Symposium on Access to Health Care, “Reinventing Medicaid in a Post-Health Reform America,” featured legal experts from across the country who gathered at Loyola in November to compare state approaches and discuss national policy perspectives. More than 200 students, professors, attorneys, and health care professionals attended the symposium to learn about challenges facing the Medicaid program.

Loyola’s health law faculty once again published and spoke on a number of topics. Professor John Blum recently authored a piece on Medicaid and continues to research the role of apology in medicine. Professor Larry Singer presented “The Impact of Health Reform on Hospitals” for the Illinois State Bar Association and at the University of Chicago. Professor Nadia Sawicki continues to focus on regulating patient decision aids, speaking on the topic at the University of Chicago and authoring a forthcoming article for Arizona Law Review. She also recently published articles on freedom of conscience and informed consent. Professor Emily Benfer authored forthcoming pieces on women’s poverty and law school education outside the classroom. She and Health Justice Project Fellow Allyson Gold presented on social determinants of health to Northwestern University faculty and residents and medical staff at Erie Family Health Center. Additionally, Gold presented “Early Detection and Action: How MLPs Can Use Proactive Legal Strategies in Housing Conditions Cases” at the MLP National Summit.
Providing practical skills

Long a leader in clinical education, the School of Law recently retooled its curriculum and externship program to place an even greater emphasis on experiential learning. Loyola law students graduate with substantive knowledge of the law coupled with hands-on experience that ties together theory and real-world lawyering—and prepares them for successful practice.

Clinic update

Clinics foster diverse skill development

The School of Law’s five clinics combine opportunities for students to gain practical experience while serving the community, especially underserved segments of the population.

BUSINESS LAW CLINIC

Loyola’s Business Law Clinic (BLC), established in 1999, offers students a unique opportunity to develop essential lawyering skills in a professional, interactive environment. Last year 24 student clinicians, under the direct supervision of licensed attorneys, represented 147 entrepreneurs and small business owners, as well as individuals seeking legal assistance with not-for-profit organizations, with over 50 clients on the waiting list.

The BLC is 100 percent transactional. More than 60 percent of BLC clients are not-for-profit ventures. For-profit clients include entrepreneurs, inventors, service providers, and, increasingly, web-based business owners.

CIVITAS CHILDLAW CLINIC

Over the past year, 24 law students participating in the ChildLaw Clinic represented more than 100 clients in state and federal child welfare, domestic relations, education, and international child abduction cases. Loyola’s child clients range in age from infants to young adults who are preparing for independence as they exit foster care.

Notable cases included the successful prosecution of a petition in federal court seeking the return of two minors pursuant to the Hague Convention on International Child Abduction, and the successful defense of several minors facing school expulsion hearings.

COMMUNITY LAW CENTER CLINIC

The Community Law Center Clinic, the oldest of the School of Law’s clinics, serves clients whose main source of income is public assistance or people struggling to meet their obligations even though they have jobs. Cases focus on family issues and landlord-tenant conflicts. Since its founding in the early 1980s, the clinic has represented more than 3,000 individuals.

Thirty students enrolled in Loyola’s Community Law Center Clinic this past year handled more than 70 cases, 10 of which went to trial. The guardian ad litem project continued, with students representing children in contested guardianship cases in the Probate Division of the Circuit Court of Cook County. Other cases included divorce, paternity, child support, housing issues, and child abduction. The center benefited...
hands-on learning

tremendously last year from the expertise of Clinical Fellow Jamie Hossa (JD ‘10), who supervised and mentored students in the area of family law.

FEDERAL TAX CLINIC

The Federal Tax Clinic operates as a law office. Clients are referred by private attorneys, bar associations, social service agencies, and previous clients. With clients’ consent, student representatives work with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to resolve disputes from the beginning to the end of the cases. Last year, the clinic accepted more than 100 low-income taxpayers as clients and provided consultations to more than 200 taxpayers.

Other highlights include an $80,000 federal grant from the IRS to help fund clinical operations; the implementation of a web-based case management system, “Legal Server,” which provides students with the practical skills and training to prepare them for future employment; and the addition of a licensed attorney to the clinic’s Pro Bono Panel, which gives recent graduates the opportunity to refine their tax representation.

HEALTH JUSTICE PROJECT

Since its launch in 2010, the Health Justice Project (HJP) has helped more than 700 Erie Family Health Center patients to overcome social and legal issues that prevent long-term health and stability for low income individuals and families. Loyola law alumnus Curt Rodin (JD ’75) and his wife, Linda, are supporting a fellowship for a junior attorney, Allyson Gold, who has a valuable background in housing law.

Other 2011-12 highlights included the forgiveness of $561,553 in medical debt for clients, and Medicaid reimbursement to institutions amounting to $547,235. Additionally, the HJP expanded its policy focus. Five senior policy students represented the National Coalition for the Homeless to develop a two-prong policy strategy, including litigation and legislative reform and the first study of stakeholders and individuals who are homeless.
Experiential learning

Redesigned externship program emphasizes practical skills and core values

Loyola’s externship program creates interesting and unique opportunities for students to develop as well-prepared lawyers and ethical leaders. With the addition of new coursework to the externship requirement, student externs may now gain practical skills outside of the classroom as well as strengthen their ability to make a smooth transition from students to legal professionals. During the semester-long course, student externs meet with counsel from the Illinois Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission, members of the judiciary, and a diverse and distinguished group of practicing attorneys. The curriculum focuses on practice-oriented skills and issues of relevance to the bench and bar, including ethics and pro bono activities.

Loyola’s portfolio of extern opportunities with the judiciary, corporations, government, and not-for-profit entities continues to grow strategically. Cultural institutions such as the Chicago History Museum and the Museum of Science and Industry, which recently were added to the list of field-placement opportunities, expose students to a variety of work environments that complement their interest and enrich their learning experience. Recent additions to the externship list include:

- Resolution Systems Institute and the Center for Conflict Resolution
- Integrys Business Support LLC
- National Association of Realtors®
- Mintel
- Walgreens
- Intersport
- City of Chicago, Mayor’s Office for People with Disabilities
- Cook County Equal Opportunity Office, Bureau of Human Resources
- Illinois Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission
- Illinois Supreme Court Commission on Professionalism
- Chicago Legal Advocacy for Incarcerated Mothers
- James B. Moran Center for Youth Advocacy
- John Howard Association of Illinois
- Sargent Shriver National Center on Poverty Law

Other academic areas of focus

In addition to advances in Centers of Excellence and clinical and experiential learning, Loyola celebrates several other academic innovations and successes this year.

Distance learning

Loyola continues to break ground in online legal education

Since the Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy launched the nation’s first online master of jurisprudence (MJ) in health law degree for non-lawyers in 2008, the School of Law has been a national pioneer in providing online legal education. Removing geographical and scheduling barriers, online programs make a quality Loyola law education accessible to students across the country and globe.

MJ and LLM in Health Law

The Beazley Institute continues to attract leading health care professionals from around the world to study and teach health law and policy at Loyola. Joining the online MJ in health law program is the master of laws (LLM) in health law degree, offered online since 2010. The online LLM program continues to grow as the demand for health law as a legal specialty increases rapidly. Online learning management emphasizes interaction with live courses, recorded lectures, and interactive discussion boards, creating dialogue between faculty, attorneys, and health care professionals across the globe. The MJ in health law program has graduated 150 students since the program’s inception. The LLM in health law degree program has graduated 15 since fall 2010.

MJ IN CHILDREN’S LAW AND POLICY

The online MJ in children’s law and policy is a 24-credit part-time degree program specifically designed for professionals committed to promoting children’s health, safety, education, and well-being, and who wish to enhance their professional skills, achieve their career objectives, and advocate more effectively for children and youth. The curriculum includes Introduction to the Study of Law and the Legal System, Introduction to Children’s Law, Policy and Practice, Leadership Development, and such electives as Education Law and Policy, Child Welfare Law, Juvenile Justice, Family Law, Mental Health Law, Poverty and Public Benefits, Conflict Resolution, and more. The first cohort of online students began in the fall 2011 term and will graduate in summer 2013.

MJ IN BUSINESS AND CORPORATE GOVERNANCE LAW

Joining the School of Law’s online health law and children’s law and policy MJ degree programs, Loyola’s online MJ in business and corporate governance law program was launched in June for fall 2012 enrollment. This unique program provides business professionals with the opportunity to gain a sophisticated understanding of how the law operates in a business transactional and regulatory setting. Students will develop the skills they need to understand the legal context of business and corporate governance law.
International learning

Global opportunities grow with new leadership

James Gathii has joined Loyola as the new Wing-Tat Lee Chair in International Law, while Insa Blanke directs Loyola’s new international LLM programs.

All the law school’s areas of expertise—health law, child and family law, advocacy, business and tax, antitrust, intellectual property—have strong international and comparative components. The law school’s curriculum, in Chicago and abroad, continually expands and deepens to respond to developing areas of international professional interest.

In addition to launching a new LLM program in rule of law for development (PROLAW) at Loyola’s John Felice Rome Center in Italy last September (see opposite page), the School of Law has expanded its LLM offerings to include two new master of laws programs for international students. Designed for graduates from non-U.S. law schools seeking to meet bar exam requirements of select U.S. jurisdictions, the new LLM in U.S. law for foreign lawyers provides a thorough training in U.S. law and legal skills critical to advising clients in the U.S. and globally. The second program option, an LLM in international law, gives students the flexibility to tailor the curriculum to match their academic interests and professional goals.

The School of Law continues to offer a four-week summer program of international and comparative law courses in Rome. Loyola’s four-week program in Beijing, China, and a one-week field study in Strasbourg, France, were also popular international course offerings available to students this summer. Other international highlights included the London Advocacy program, which provides students with the opportunity to immerse themselves in the world of the British barrister in London over winter break; an international and comparative law seminar in International Children’s Rights with a field study over spring break in Istanbul, Turkey; and a Comparative Law Seminar: Legal Systems in the Americas with an optional spring break week in Santiago, Chile. Students who enroll in the International Commercial Arbitration and the CISG course last fall were eligible to try out for the Willem C. Vis International Commercial Arbitration Moot and the Willem C. Vis (East) International Commercial Arbitration Moot teams. Loyola teams competed in Vienna and Hong Kong, respectively.

PROLAW

Practice-oriented LLM covers rule of law for development

Loyola has furthered its commitment to promoting justice and legal reform, protecting human dignity, and eliminating poverty with the introduction last fall of a one-year, practice-oriented LLM program in rule of law for development hosted at Loyola’s John Felice Rome Center in Italy. The program, called PROLAW, received a $1.1 million grant last year, and a supplemental grant for $700,000 this spring from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, which works closely with partners like Loyola to support and expand innovative approaches to serve those in need across the world. The program is also supported by generous donations from Microsoft Corporation, the late Loyola law alumnus Bernard Beazley (JD’50), Loyola University Chicago Trustee Barry McCabe, the U.S. State Department, the Government of Uganda, and the employers of several students enrolled in the program. PROLAW’s first class of 25 students included legal professionals from the U.S., Australia, Bulgaria, Cambodia, Ethiopia, Georgia, Liberia, Mexico, New Zealand, Nigeria, South Africa, Tanzania, the Kingdom of Tonga, Turkmenistan, Uganda, Uzbekistan, and Zimbabwe. While some students are recent law school graduates interested in public service and human rights, many come to Loyola with extensive experience in rule of law initiatives from their respective countries. PROLAW is recognized by the international development community as a leader in efforts to improve the quality and sustainability of nationally and internationally backed rule of law initiatives.
Institute for Consumer Antitrust Studies

Program builds a more competitive, consumer-friendly economy

Loyola’s Institute for Consumer Antitrust Studies is a non-partisan, independent academic center designed to explore the impact of antitrust enforcement on the individual consumer and the public, and to shape policy issues. Under the leadership of Director Spencer Weber Waller, the institute fulfills its mission by sponsoring symposia, academic colloquia, and a unique student fellowship.

Highlights of the past year included a lecture last fall by FTC Commissioner Tom Rosch, who discussed “Privacy in the Internet Age.” This spring, FTC Commissioner Julie Brill presented the keynote address at Loyola’s Antitrust Colloquium, titled “Privacy, Competition, and Consumer Protection.” (Video presentations of both FTC commissioner lectures are available at LUC.edu/antitrust.) The institute also cosponsored a sold-out symposium, “Brands, Competition, and the Law,” at University College London in December 2011. More than 100 students, practitioners, judges, enforcers, and professors attended Loyola’s 13th annual Loyola Antitrust Colloquium this past April.

Institute for Investor Protection

New academic center protects consumers, public

Established at the School of Law last year with funds from a cy pres award from the class action settlement in Abrams v. Van Kampen Fund Inc., Loyola’s Institute for Investor Protection held its first annual conference last fall. The institute was formed as a non-partisan, independent academic center to promote investor protection for the individual consumer and the public, and to shape policy issues affecting investors.

Intellectual Property

Loyola maintains a strong local, national IP presence

Highlights of 2011-12 for Loyola’s thriving Intellectual Property Program include a big win at the 2012 Giles Sutherland Rich Intellectual Property Moot Court Competition: Loyola won the national championship and its second team advanced to the regional semifinals. Loyola students will continue to participate in this annual competition and will also be represented this year in the Saul Lefkowitz Moot Court Competition, which introduces law students to important issues arising in U.S. trademark and unfair competition law.

2012 marked the 10th year that Loyola has cohosted the Chicago IP Colloquium, an annual program that brings national scholars to Chicago to discuss their current research with Loyola students and local attorneys. In addition, Loyola hosted its first annual IP reception this spring, bringing together more than 50 IP alumni and current students for an evening of conversation and networking.

Loyola once again hosted the Patent Law Interview Program, a two-day annual event that brings together patent law employers and law students from across the country to interview for summer associate positions and postgraduate employment. This year, more than 700 law students from 193 law schools registered by submitting their resumes for interviews with approximately 125 nationwide employers. Nearly half of the students registered for the program are selected for interviews each year by participating employers.
Law and Religion

Initiative explores connections between Abrahamic religions and the law

The School of Law’s new program in Law and Religion explores the ways in which Christianity, Islam, and Judaism influence, shape, contribute to, or resist the development of broader social, political, and legal outcomes. The program launched at Loyola this spring with three thought-provoking events: a debate on an important U.S. Supreme Court case involving religious liberty issues; a panel discussion drawing on Jewish and Muslim scholars to examine recent controversies about whether and how religious law should be considered by civil courts; and an inaugural lecture by distinguished Jewish scholar Rabbi Jacob Neusner on how the three faiths answer similar questions relating to the law and social order.

An elective course on Comparative Issues in Law and Religion has been added to Loyola’s curriculum. In addition, plans are under way to expand the program’s reach beyond the academic community, so that a broader audience will benefit from and participate in the ongoing dialogue on current issues and topics relevant to law and religion.

Life After Innocence

Program to assist exonerees celebrates numerous successes

Life After Innocence (LAI) celebrated its third year assisting Illinois exonerees—people who have been wrongfully convicted, imprisoned, and then exonerated—in starting their lives over. Professor Laura Caldwell, adjunct professors, and students obtained a Certificate of Innocence for Antoine Day, who served 10 years for a murder he did not commit. Students and faculty are now working with Day and exoneree Jarrett Adams to form Life After Justice, a transitional housing and community center for exonerees. Adams recently graduated with honors from Roosevelt University and is now a first-year law student at Loyola. LAI also celebrated the graduation of Jovan Mosley, who was part of the inspiration for Life After Innocence. He received his BA degree from Loyola and plans to attend law school at Loyola in fall 2013.

LAI has been working with the Illinois Department of Human Services/Mental Health and the Illinois Department of Employment Security to implement exoneree-benefiting legislation the group was instrumental in passing. LAI will begin a fundraising initiative in the fall to further expand the program.
Spotlight on public service

Loyola University Chicago School of Law is dedicated to the Jesuit tradition of service to others. The School of Law provides many opportunities for students to use their legal skills and commitment to social justice to help those in need, obtaining practical skills while serving the community. Here are highlights from 2011-12’s Public Interest Law Program.

- More than 100 first-year law students participated in a Day of Service during orientation. Students assisted in legal aid offices as well as parks, schools, and social service agencies.
- In September, 30 Loyola law students taught U.S. Constitution fundamentals to students in grades 6-8 enrolled in Gale Community Academy and Galapagos Charter School.
- Last fall, the School of Law collaborated with Loyola’s School of Sociology, Center for the Human Rights of Children, Water Tower Campus Life, and Department of Criminal Justice to bring a producer and cast members of The Interrupters, a film about three Chicago “violence interrupters,” to campus. More than 250 people attended the screening and discussion.
- High-school students from Von Steuben Career Academy came to Loyola last fall to attend a “law day.” Participants learned about the practice of law from practitioners and a panel of current law students.
- On four consecutive Saturdays this past winter, more than 70 high-school students from the Chicago area participated in Loyola Law Academy, a program held at the Corboy Law Center to introduce high-school students to legal education and the practice of law.
- This spring, Loyola law students and alumni facilitated several “Know Your Legal Rights” training sessions for students from Kelvyn Park High School, Thornton High School, Harlan Community Academy, and the Black Star Project.
- Loyola hosted the Norman Amaker Retreat at its Resurrection Retreat Center in February. More than 75 law students from across the country attended the event, “Breaking Barriers and Building Bridges: Public Interest Initiatives for a Better Tomorrow.”
- Recent graduates Cynthia Cornelius (JD ’12) and Daniel Hochbaum (JD ’12) received Equal Justice Works fellowships to work in public interest positions. Cynthia’s fellowship allows her to work at Cabrini Green Legal Aid, and Daniel’s fellowship provides him with the opportunity to work at Equip for Equality.
- The first annual Urban Issues Summit took place at the Corboy Law Center this spring. The theme “Health Disparities” featured Professors Anita Weinberg and Allyson Gold and law student Elisa Pleasant (JD ’13) as panelists. The summit was sponsored by the School of Law, Water Tower Campus Life, Living Learning Communities, Stritch School of Medicine, School of Sociology, and Wellness Center.
- More 120 attendees gathered at the second annual Loyola Chicago Youth Summit and Expo held at the Corboy Law Center in June. The expo features art, spoken word performances, informational tables from legal services organizations and Loyola departments, a youth panel, and special responses from several Loyola alumni.
- Ninety-two law students served others by working in one of Loyola’s five law clinics.
- Ninety-seven law students participated in externships, many of them serving the public interest.

First-rate facilities

The School of Law’s expanding and recently renovated facilities enjoy a prime location in the heart of Chicago, which offers cultural and recreational opportunities as well as employment opportunities in private practice, government, business, and virtually every other sector. Phase three of the renovation and expansion of the Philip H. Corboy Law Center at 25 East Pearson Street was completed in January.

The first two phases resulted in new clinical and office space, the state-of-the-art Power Rogers & Smith Ceremonial Courtroom, the Dan K. Webb Center for Advocacy, and new administrative and advancement offices. Phase three provided new faculty and staff offices, additional classroom and study space, and the Robert J. Corboy Courtroom.

Welcoming new faculty

The School of Law continues to attract renowned professors to its well-rounded faculty, welcoming new and visiting professors and lecturers in residence with expertise in emerging and evolving areas of the law.

NEW FACULTY

James Gathii joined Loyola University Chicago in July as the School of Law’s Wing-Tat Lee Chair in International Law. Gathii comes to Loyola with a distinguished record of scholarship, teaching, and practice in the field of international law. A renowned scholar in the areas of international trade and economic law, public international law, and good governance in Africa, Gathii most recently was the associate dean for research and scholarship and the Governor George E. Pataki Professor of International Commercial Law at Albany Law School in New York.

He has served as the Crowe and Dunlevy Visiting International Law Professor at the University of Oklahoma College of Law, and as an assistant professor at Rutgers Business School. Gathii is an independent expert of the Working Group on Extractive Industries, Environment, and Human Rights Violations in Africa of the African Commission on Human and Peoples’ Rights. He is a founding member of the Third World Approaches to International Law network. He serves as cochair of the African Interest Group of the American Society of International Law, and is a member of the International Law Association’s Study Committee on the Meaning of War, and the Global Faculty of the Trade Policy Training Institute (TRAPCA) in Arusha, Tanzania.

The Wing-Tat Lee Chair was created to honor the generosity of Wing-Tat Lee, a Hong Kong businessman who provided the funds for the endowment. In addition to researching, teaching, and publishing in the area of international law, the chair develops and plans international programs and conferences at the law school as well as facilitates international law student and faculty exchanges for Loyola.

Zelda Harris joined Loyola’s full-time law faculty this summer as the new director of the Dan K. Webb Center for Advocacy. In this very important role, Harris will oversee all aspects of the Center for Advocacy program, including curriculum development, running the NITA Regional Trial Advocacy Program, and assisting with the acclaimed Philip H. Corboy Fellowship Program in Trial Advocacy. Harris served as a visiting professor...
Professor Juan Perea teaches and writes about race and law.

1049 citations of Juan Perea’s books and articles appear in law review articles on Westlaw.
of law at Loyola University Chicago during the 2006-07 academic year, and most recently was a clinical professor of law and director of the Domestic Violence Law Clinic, as well as codirector of the Child and Family Law Clinic, at the University of Arizona's James E. Rogers College of Law. She has been a member of the NITA faculty since 1995. Prior to her academic career, Harris worked as an attorney for the Land of Lincoln Legal Assistance Foundation, Inc., in Alton, Illinois.

In Arizona, Harris served as president of the Brewer Center Domestic Violence Services, and as a member of the domestic violence advocacy group for Saheli: Sisters in Action. She has also been a commissioner of the City of Tucson/Pima County Domestic Violence Commission. In Chicago, her roles have included chair of the Chicago Bar Association’s Domestic Violence Subcommittee, Juvenile Law Committee; trustee on the board of directors for Chicago Metropolitan Battered Women’s Network; and member of the board of directors, Today’s Chicago Woman Foundation. Harris’s other public service memberships include the Illinois Maternal and Child Health Coalition; Illinois Family Violence Coordinating Council; Office of the Cook County State’s Attorney, Domestic Violence Task Force; and the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services Domestic Violence Advisory Council.

Juan Perea joined Loyola’s full-time law faculty in July 2011. He served as a visiting professor at Loyola in fall 2010 from University of Florida Levin College of Law, where he was the Cone, Wagner, Nugent, Johnson, Hazouri & Roth Professor of Law. He teaches and writes in the areas of race and race relations, constitutional law, employment law, and professional responsibility. Perea has been a visiting professor at Harvard Law School, Boston College Law School, and University of Colorado School of Law. In 1986-87, he clerked for Hon. Bruce M. Selya of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit. He has written extensively on racial inequality, immigration history, and the civil rights of Latinos in the U.S. His current research interests include the critical theory of history and historiography. Perea has testified as an expert before the U.S. Senate, the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights. He is a member of the American Law Institute.

Matthew Sag joined Loyola’s full-time law faculty in July 2011. He served as a visiting professor at Loyola in 2010-11 from DePaul University College of Law. Sag has been a visiting professor of law at Northwestern University School of Law and the University of Virginia School of Law. Prior to his academic career, he practiced as an intellectual property attorney in the United Kingdom with Arnold & Porter and in Silicon Valley, California, with Skadden, Arps. Sag earned his law degree with honors from the Australian National University and clerked for Justice Paul Finn of the Federal Court of Australia. His research focuses on law and economics and intellectual property.

VISITING FACULTY

Fazal Khan joined Loyola last fall as a visiting professor with the Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy from the University of Georgia School of Law, where he teaches health law and policy, bioethics, public health law, and international products liability. Khan’s research focuses on reform of the American health care system, the effect of globalization on health care, and the challenge of regulating emerging biotechnologies. Khan earned his MD and JD degrees from the Medical Scholars Program at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. His scholarly articles have been published in the Harvard Law Review and Health Matrix. At Loyola, he taught courses in Law and Science as well as International Products Liability.

Patricia Mell joined Loyola last year as a visiting professor. She served as dean of John Marshall Law School in Chicago, where she became the first black and first female dean in the school’s history. Prior to joining John Marshall, she was a professor of law at Michigan State University-Detroit College of Law, a visiting professor at Capital University Law School and the University of Toledo Law School, and as an assistant professor at Widener University. She also served as assistant attorney general for the State of Ohio. In 2004, Crain’s Chicago Business named Mell one of Chicago’s 100 most influential women. At Loyola, she taught first-year Criminal Law and an intensive Criminal Law seminar.

SENIOR LECTURERS IN RESIDENCE

Laura Caldwell (JD ’92) joined the School of law in 2009. She has litigation experience in the areas of medical malpractice, insurance defense, and entertainment law. Caldwell has been published in a variety of legal publications, and is also a freelance magazine writer and a novelist. She began publishing thrillers and suspense novels in 2005. Caldwell is founder and director of a Loyola project called Life After Innocence, which aids former prisoners following exoneration. Her first work of non-fiction, Long Way Home: The Story of a Young Man Lost in the System and the Two Women Who Found Him, was published in 2010.

Atanu Das (JD ’06) provides and prosecutes patent application services and conducts legal research. He also provides technological advice in support of validity and patentability analyses; patent application preparation and prosecution; and litigation in electrical, computing, telecommunications, and mechanical and materials matters. He teaches Cyber Law and Intellectual Property at Loyola.

Richard A. Devine joined Loyola in 2009. He is a partner at Meckler Bulger Tilson Marick & Pearson LLP, and a member of the Chicago office of Resolute Systems, providing mediation, arbitration, and alternative dispute resolution services. Devine is a former state’s attorney for Cook County. At Loyola, he teaches Criminal Law.

William Carlisle Herbert has more than 15 years of experience as a litigation training partner with the Chicago law firms Hopkins and Sutter and Foley and Lardner LLP. At Loyola, he teaches the Law of Risk Management and Advanced Litigation Skills.

Kathleen Hirsman (JD ’84) joined Loyola last summer with more than 25 years of experience in school law practice, representing and counseling school districts in board governance issues, student issues, labor and personnel matters, collective bargaining, special education, general litigation, and in a general corporate advisory capacity. She teaches courses in The Practice of School Law, Education Law and Policy, Special Education Advocacy, and Labor and Employment Issues in the Education Workplace.

Richard Rosenberg is a former partner at the Chicago law firm Mayer, Brown and Platt, where he represented institutional lenders in various financial transactions, including workouts and bankruptcy debt restructurings, leveraged buyouts, securitization transactions, and new financial product design. He also represented banks and other corporate clients in various corporate transactions, including acquisitions and bank regulatory work. He has lectured and published on a wide variety of commercial law issues. Rosenberg joined the part-time law faculty at Loyola in 1983 and has served on the full-time law faculty as a visiting professor since 1996. He teaches Business Organizations, Business Planning, and Professional Responsibility.

Robert Slaughter most recently served as executive vice president, general counsel, and corporate secretary of Grubb & Ellis Company, a real estate services company. He teaches courses in Negotiation and Documentation of Merger and Acquisition Transactions and the Art of In-House Legal Counseling.

Barbara Youngberg joined Loyola from University HealthSystem Consortium Inc., where she served as vice president of insurance, risk, quality management, and legal services. She is teaching a Risk Management course with Loyola’s Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy. Youngberg also serves on the faculty of Concord Law School.

Dukes: Taking the Protection Out of Protected Classes,” at a conference at Lewis & Clark Law School about “The Protected-Class Approach to Antidiscrimination Law: Logic Effects, Reform.”
DEAR FRIENDS,

Thank you! Your enthusiastic support of the School of Law made for a record year of alumni participation. The contributions of your time, talent, and treasure are recognized in the following fiscal year 2012 Honor Roll of Donors, which reflects gifts made between July 1, 2011, and June 30, 2012.

This fall, the University is officially launching Access to Excellence: The Campaign for Scholarships. Michael J. Garanzini, S.J., Loyola University Chicago president and CEO, has pledged $22 million in funds to match contributions of $500 or more made to an endowed scholarship in a fiscal year. Thanks to our FY12 donors, the law school has launched and endowed seven new scholarships. On behalf of the Board of Governors, I extend our most sincere gratitude for making this year a terrific success. Together, I am confident we will not only break more records next year, but triumph with a disproportionate share of the $22 million match going to the law school!

ACCESS TO EXCELLENCE:
THE CAMPAIGN FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

Your scholarship. Their opportunity. Our future.

A scholarship is more than a charitable gift—it is recognition for diligent work. This fall, the University launched Access to Excellence: The Campaign for Scholarships. The campaign seeks to raise $80 million in scholarship support, and Michael J. Garanzini, S.J., Loyola University Chicago president and CEO, has pledged $22 million in funds to match contributions of $500 or more made to an endowed scholarship in a fiscal year. Our ability to ensure that the best students, regardless of background or socioeconomic status, can attend the law school is inextricably tied to our generous donors who appreciate the value of hard work. The following donors, and the scholarships to which they contribute, directly impact our students’ opportunities and future successes.

Kathy Byrne (JD ’88)
Trial Attorney, Cooney and Conway

Volunteer activities: Dan K. Webb Center for Advocacy–Circle of Advocates, Advocacy Mentor Program, and Reunion 2008 Committee

Since graduating in 1988, Kathy has been an active volunteer with Loyola law. In addition to her formal roles, she is a frequent guest speaker and has often hosted annual mentoring events in her home. Asked what led her to volunteer at the law school initially, Kathy replied, ‘I don’t think there was ever a first time.’ After graduation, my professors continued to serve as a valuable resource. They always made themselves available to me, so it feels only natural that I would do the same for current students.”

Dan Boho (BA ‘74, JD ’77)
Partner, Hinshaw & Culbertson LLP
Volunteer activities: Reunion 2012 Committee

Dan is always happy to help Loyola. He hosted Dean David Yellen’s first law firm reception when David arrived in 2005, and now Dan has agreed to serve on his class reunion committee. Why is he so willing to help raise the profile of Loyola law and encourage support from fellow alumni? “If your practice is satisfying, it’s hard not to come back to the place where the law started for you,” Dan says. “My professors’ love of the law and commitment to students left a lasting impression, and I look for a way to say thanks.”

Neal T. Goldstein (JD ’89)
Partner, Seyfarth Shaw LLP

Volunteer activities: Adjunct Faculty (two courses), Health Law Curriculum Committee, and Judge for Bryant National Health Law Transactional Competition

A member of Seyfarth’s Health Care Practice Group, Neal came back to Loyola as a guest lecturer in the Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy in 2001 and has taught his seminar on the Stark Law since 2008. Convinced that “Loyola prepares students for practice like no other law school,” he is expanding his time commitment at Loyola to teach a second course this year. While Neal enjoys teaching and feels that he gets back far more than he puts in, he particularly enjoys counseling students about their health law careers and has been one of the institute’s ‘go-to’ alumni for years. “I grow prouder of the school and my degree every year,” he says.

He faithfully attends Institute for Consumer Antitrust Studies events in Chicago and Washington, DC, and enthusiastically mentors student applicants and new graduates in the DC area. Professor and institute Director Spencer Waller describes Bob as “personally and professionally the embodiment of the program.” Bob says, “Consumer Antitrust provided me both an intellectual home and career path. Giving back to the Fellows and the program is a duty and a pleasure.”

Marci A. Rolnik (JD ’00)
Legal Director, Lawyers for the Creative Arts

Recognizing that "students need access to advice from working lawyers to hear real-world applications of business and intellectual property law," Marci generously donates her time and expertise as a guest lecturer and supervises students in the externship program. "My employer, a not-for-profit organization, has benefited tremendously from the research, writing, and fresh perspective Loyola students bring to our office," she says. Marci even helped one Loyola graduate land a position at the entertainment law firm of her dreams, and helped another who gained a position handling cutting-edge copyright policy overseas. "I hired them because they demonstrated drive and integrity—exactly what I expect from Loyola students," Marci says.

Volunteer activities: First-Year Dinners, Young Alumni Events Committee, Student Competition Coach, Student Competition Judge, and Reunion 2007 Committee

Katie has been an active volunteer since graduating from the School of Law in 2007. She says that staying connected to the Loyola law family and building and maintaining relationships with students are the two greatest reasons for her volunteer activities. Katie especially enjoys coaching, wanting to pay forward the exceptional coaching and support she received as a student. “The opportunity to watch a student grow and become a great attorney and/or advocate” keeps her engaged and involved, Katie says.
